

Q71. Which of the following is an appropriate description of the virus pattern file that is used in virus protection measures for computers?

- a) It is a file included in virus protection software and is used to repair files that have been infected by viruses.
- b) It is a file that records the program code of known viruses and is used to re-enact viruses to monitor their activities.
- c) It is a file that records the signature code of known viruses and is used to detect viruses by the virus protection software.
- d) It is a restoration file and is used when a data file is damaged by a virus.